The Sidewalk Problem

The people of Madison borough have a right to be very deeply interested in the ordinances now before the Borough Council, which provide for the construction of proper sidewalks upon leading streets of the borough.

The ordinances provide for stone of cement sidewalks upon atreets where property owners have already laid some stone and cement walks. By the providing of these ordinances, If such ordinances are passed by the Borough Council and enforced, as they undoubtedly will be, upon these important streets there will be an uabroken line of stone and cement walks.

At the hearing before the Council of property owners luterested, it is not likely that there will be any considerable objection raised to the demands of the Council, as shown by such ordinaccee. The people of Madison have come to understand that the sidewalk problem is too important to the further growth of the village to be longer put saide. It Madison is to be numbered among enterprising villages seeking further growth and development, such sidewalk conditions as we now have must and longer be accepted by our people or granted by our Borough Council, who are largely responsible for our future.

Chatham has just gone through the experience we now face, and found its citizens so patriotic and loyal that there was little objection to the, demands of the Council. Summit is lay-1 g long stretches of cement and stone walk; for that enterprising town has seen the need of such improvements. It is not likely that Madison people will be behind in this work or so blind to their own interests that they will not heartly support the Council.

It le well to do this thing right, from the beginning. It will be found cheaper we believe in the long run, to lay durable walks than to make them of loose material as has been done, to be washed out by each storm. However good this loose material may be during wet weather when walks are most needed, it is always muddy. So long as the need of walks is so readily recognized, let there be no mistake made at the outset in laying them of material that will not last,

We believe sincerely that this action of the Council is the most important that has been taken in recent years. Toelr work is to be commended. By this important step they prove conclusively that they have the welfare of Madleon at heart .- Madison Eagle, Central Avenue Trolley.

Last week the Common Council of East Orange passed the ordinance granting permission to the Public Service Corporation a franchise to lay trolley tracks on Central avenue in that city. The Citizene' Committee, which has been fighting against granting the privilege for some time, waited on Mayor Bruen after the passage of the ordinance and urged h m not to sign it. This proved to be of no avail, for the Mayor signed the ordinance on Saturday. Unless the ma ter la carried into the courte, it is supposed that the trolley company will go to work immediately to lay the tracks.

State Normal School

The New Jersey State Normal and

Model Schools at Trenton have had one of the most successful years of their history. The enrollment of the Nort al School was 508. About seventy-five per cent, of these were graduates of high schools of four years' courses before entering the Normal. Twenty-five per cent. represe ted those coming from the rural county and town districts and taking the longer courses at the Normal.

The Normal School has been unable to meet the demands for its graduates as teachers. The class graduated in February were practically all engaged before the middle of that month, and more than half the class graduated in June were engaged before they received their diplomas. The salaries received were in advance of those of previous years, ranging from $45 to $75 per month. The Normal School has felt an increased demand for male teachers.

It has already filled with its graduates many of the preminent principalships and superintendencies of the State at salaries ranging from $1,200 to $2,500

It feels that the demand is such as to encourage young men to take up the work of teaching, the work offering young men, especially those from the more rural sections, and a professional advantage to still many more. The enrollment in the Model was 580. This school has gradualed one of the largest classes in its history, a class numbering nearly forty. A great majority of these students enter upon the college courses being represented in nearly all of the leading Eastern colleges, both for men and women. The strength these students have shown in their college en-
